

What happens next?

There is a sharp intake of breath at the back of the class. One by one the students turn to look out of the window. In the end, the teacher has to abandon any pretence of teaching and goes to look outside.....

The classroom is on the first floor, looking out over the playground, where Mr Facetious the Head Teacher is being arrested by 10 police officers. They are trying to handcuff him, but he is not cooperating.

Mr F is shouting, 'I haven't done anything wrong! Why are you arresting me?'

Immediately, all the teenagers get their phones out and start recording. The teacher tries to refocus their attention. She asks the TA to close the blinds, but the teenagers won't get out of the way.

Mr Facetious is now lying on the ground, surrounded by police officers. One of them tases him and they manage to get him up and put him in a police vehicle, which roars off with the blues-and-twos going.

There is a stunned silence in the classroom. The teacher tries to finish the lesson. Fortunately the bell rings for the end of the day and the students rush out. There is a hubbub of excited noise as they all compare notes with each other. The teachers try to confiscate all of their phones and a riot ensues. Eventually things calm down and the students leave.

The teachers, looking pale and serious, make their way to the staffroom for a meeting. All the biscuits are devoured within 10 seconds.

On the news that night there is film of Mr Facetious being arrested. Apparently he is accused of fraud.

When the students arrive at the school the next day it's surrounded by journalists and news crews. The students are all keen to do interviews, but they are demanding payment which is refused. The deputy head comes to the gate and says school is closed for the day. The teachers are all inside, discussing what to do.

The phone rings and the deputy head, assuming it's the media, shouts, 'Go away! We have got nothing to say to you!' A quiet voice says, 'It's me!' Mr Facetious has been rescued by the A-Team. He is on the run, trying to prove his Innocence. He has been flown out of the country by HM Murdoch on a private plane. Now he is collecting evidence. ..

The ideas and words for this story were totally mine. My granny helped me with the structure, the spellings and the punctuation. I dictated it on to my laptop, but it wasn't very successful because the talk-to-type software isn't very good and we had to make lots of corrections.
